Work Session:

Places 29 – Draft Master Plan (Judy Wiegand)

Chapter 5: Future Land Use and Transportation Framework
Chapter 6: Community Facilities and Services

As an introduction, Mr. Cilimberg emphasized that in dealing with the land use and the transportation in this plan at this point it is truly the ultimate plan as they see it now for the Places29 area. This is more than what one might expect to see in 5, 10 or 20 years. The reality is that it is going to take many years for some of what they will see tonight to actually transpire. It may be in a second or third generation of land use. As they know land use is cycled in and out. There is a life cycle to any development. Some of what they see tonight might be in the second or third life cycle. He wanted to make that point because as they are looking at this they want to be focused on what they would want the Places29 area to really look like and feel like in that ultimate development. This is very important because when the Commission concludes they are going to go to a work session with the Board to talk about what they have concluded and to get their feedback. Secondly, it is going to be the basis for which they will be coming back to the Commission with the implementation program. They need to know where they are heading in order to decide what to do to get there. That implementation program will be focused on 10 and 20 years out, which is more of what they would consider to be the planning period in how they can achieve the plan in that 10 to 20 years. That is pretty traditional for planning purposes. Every 5 years the plan is reviewed. This is a very important first step. Tonight they should focus on the big picture long term in what this area will be like and what they want it to be like in that ultimate development. That is where they will work from in coming back with the implementation program.

Ms. Catlin noted that the objectives tonight are similar to last time, but focused on chapters 5 and 6 of the draft master plan. Staff wants the Commission to have a chance to review and understand its comments, take public comment on that material and ultimately to give staff feedback on the material. The material will be reviewed chapter by chapter. Staff will be asking specific questions in addition to taking comments on the general material. If the information is more to do with future chapters, they will keep a running list of the items for future discussion.

Ms. Wiegand noted that the purpose of this work session was to introduce chapters 5 and 6 to the Commission and public; to give initial opportunity for the public to ask questions and give feedback on the chapters and then provide time for the Commission to ask questions and provide direction to staff. There are a number of factors that have influenced this plan since the very beginning, which includes public input and discussions with stakeholder groups; the County's Comprehensive Plan and the Neighborhood Model and review of existing conditions. That was done early in this process. Part of that was a demographic and market trends analysis. There has also been the U.S. 29 North Corridor Transportation Study also known as 29H250. That was the beginning of the transportation portion of this plan. They have had input from the regional partners including the City of Charlottesville and the University of Virginia and County Planning District Commission and VDOT staff recommendations. She presented a Power Point Presentation.

Ms. Joseph opened the public hearing and invited public comment.

The following persons provided comments and suggestions as summarized below.

- Scott Elliffe, resident of 1885 Kernwood Place in Forest Lakes South
- Lance Corwith, of 114 Commonwealth Circle
- Morgan Butler, attorney with Southern Environment Center

- Neil Williamson, of Free Enterprises Forum
- Jack Quinn, resident of City, questioned who was going to build the roads and networks.
- Natasha Innsque, representative for Free Enterprise Forum, suggested that the information be posted on the main web page to make it easier for the public to access.

Ms. Wiegand thanked the public for their comments.

There being no further public comment, the Planning Commission reviewed the draft and made comments and suggestions as noted in the following summary.

In summary, a work session on Chapters 5 and 6 of the Places29 Draft Master Plan was held by the Planning Commission. In a PowerPoint presentation, staff introduced Chapters 5 and 6. The Commission then heard comments from the public. After the public comment, staff presented a series of detailed comments and questions on Chapter 5. It ties directly in with the Neighborhood Model. The other piece of news was the response as represented in the paper that Mr. Dorrier was considering revisiting his opinion on phasing to slow down growth in the Rural Area based on the fact that the most recent survey of citizens said that over 70 percent of the citizens favored phasing as a vehicle.
- Mr. Cilimberg will be absent next week.
